

Patient Permission Form: Case Study Presentation

Ensuring confidentiality of patient's health information is essential. Please obtain the patient (or, if applicable) the family's permission to use his/her de-identified information in a case presentation. The patient and family must be assured of confidentiality. No identifying material may be used.

Protecting patient confidentiality is vitally important in a small nation such as New Zealand.

At the start of the Case Study Presentation, this statement is usually shown:

"All information about the condition, nursing history or treatment of patients disclosed at this session is absolutely confidential. The Health Information Privacy Code (1994) applies to all present whether or not they are employees of, or studying at the CDHB."
